

COUNTRY ROADS

Adrena Valarie David

Grade IX

Chandramari International School (CMIS), Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu

Poem History: Received: 05.06.2024 | Accepted: 12.06.2024 | Published: 15.06.2024

Journal DOI: <https://doi.org/10.56602/TDJ>

Article DOI: <https://doi.org/10.56602/TDJ/13.1.1693-1693>

Amidst the chaotic city, I wander far,
My heart reigns in the town of glazing clouds
That glimmer through sunlit haze,
A piece of my heart, glitched with a sear.

The only roads I knew, were in my hometown
The pathways that never had mystery,
The pavements here, were all brown,
The mornings here were the opposite of victory.

The river hums with a familiar tune,
Whispering tales that fantasizes lasting,
June arrives, with a crescent moon,
Each corner of the city, etched with blasting.

No matter the gulf, I will find my way back home,
To cherish the reminiscences in my sweet tome.